Army JROTC ramps up with Leadership Camp

JACKSON, Mich. –Thirty-nine students gave up a week of summer break to take part in the Army JROTC 2012 Leadership Camp held at the Career Center this week. Cadets competed in the President’s Physical Fitness Test and positioned for leadership assignments and chain of command for the upcoming school year.

“We are ramping up to be ready for the 130 cadets that will show up on the first day of school,” said instructor SFC Tom Emond. “This week helps us to get organized and begin developing our team for leadership assignments.”

The program will begin its ninth year this fall. It provides an excellent opportunity for total professional development, with an emphasis on the principles and techniques of leadership, responsibility, self-discipline, and citizenship, which are useful qualities for any career choice. The mission of the program is to motivate young people to become better citizens.
